

Sector engagement

Our sector engagement team works with government agencies and social service providers to:

- Understand people's experiences and social system opportunities
- Support social system innovation, and
- Improve social system decision making capability

What is engagement?

In practice our approach to engagement supports collaborations and the two way exchange of knowledge and best practice across the wider social system. It requires that we know people and agencies across the wider social system, and understand uniquely how and why they work the way they do.

What can engagement do?

Engagement can support the gathering of information for evidence informed decision making. It sees us all connected, respected and learning together – building reciprocity and trust. In an environment of trust, we are more inclined to share stories of experience, informing examples of what works for better lives.
